Housing the City by the Bay John Baranski, 2019-02-26 San Francisco has always had an affordable housing problem Starting in the aftermath of the 1906 earthquake and ending with the dot com boom Housing the City by the Bay considers the history of one proposed answer to the city's ongoing housing crisis public housing John Baranski follows the ebbs and flows of San Francisco's public housing program the Progressive Era and New Deal reforms that led to the creation of the San Francisco Housing Authority in 1938 conflicts over urban renewal and desegregation and the federal and local efforts to privatize government housing at the turn of the twenty first century This history of public housing sheds light on changing attitudes towards liberalism the welfare state and the economic and civil rights attached to citizenship Baranski details the ways San Francisco residents turned to the public housing program to build class based political movements in a multi racial city and introduces us to the individuals community activists politicians reformers and city employees who were continually forced to seek new strategies to achieve their aims as the winds of federal legislation shifted Ultimately Housing the City by the Bay advances the idea that public housing remains a vital part of the social and political landscape intimately connected to the struggle for economic rights in urban America

More Than Shelter Amy L. Howard, 2014-05-01 In the popular imagination public housing tenants are considered at best victims of intractable poverty and at worst criminals More Than Shelter makes clear that such limited perspectives do not capture the rich reality of tenants active engagement in shaping public housing into communities By looking closely at three public housing projects in San Francisco Amy L Howard brings to light the dramatic measures tenants have taken to create and sustain and strengthen communities that mattered to them More Than Shelter opens with the tumultuous institutional history of the San Francisco Housing Authority from its inception during the New Deal era through its repeated leadership failures to its attempts to boost its credibility in the 1990s Howard then turns to Valencia Gardens in the Mission District built in 1943 the project became a perpetually contested and embattled space Within that space tenants came together in what Howard calls affective activism activism focused on intentional relationships and community building that served to fortify residents in the face of shared challenges Such activism also fueled cross sector coalition building at Ping Yuen in Chinatown bringing tenants and organizations together to advocate for and improve public housing The account of their experience breaks new ground in highlighting the diversity of public housing in more ways than one The experience of North Beach Place in turn raises questions about the politics of development and redevelopment in this case Howard examines activism across generations first by African Americans seeking to desegregate public housing then by cross racial and cross ethnic tenant groups mobilizing to maintain public housing in the shadow of gentrification Taken together the stories Howard tells challenge assumptions about public housing and its tenants and make way for a broader more productive and inclusive vision of the public housing program in the United States
