

The Missouri Compromise

In 1820, the United States had 22 states. Eleven of those states, all in the South, permitted slavery. The other eleven states, all in the North, did not permit slavery. That year, the slaveholding territory of Missouri applied for statehood, threatening the balance of power in the U.S. Senate. If Missouri became a state, the states that permitted slavery, called "slave states," would outnumber the states that prohibited slavery, called "free states."

In 1820, the representatives of Maine, previously part of Massachusetts, asked to become a state. This presented the opportunity for a compromise. If the U.S. Congress admitted Maine as a free state and then admitted Missouri as a slave state, the Senate would remain equally divided. While this possibility offered a short-term solution, what would happen when additional territories applied for statehood? In order to maintain a balance of power on this divisive issue, a plan called the Missouri Compromise was proposed. The Missouri Compromise created a boundary at 36 degrees 30' north latitude. Slavery would be outlawed in any future states north of the line and only permitted in future states south of the line.
