- (b) Stochastic gradient policy iteration (SGPI) is a stochastic gradient method for approximating the optimal policy. It is a policy iteration method that uses a stochastic gradient method to approximate the optimal policy. The algorithm is as follows:
- Initialize the policy π_0 and the value function V_0 .
 - Repeat the following steps until convergence:
 - Compute the Bellman optimality operator T applied to the current value function V_k and policy π_k .
 - Approximate the Bellman optimality operator T using a stochastic gradient method.
 - Update the value function V_k and policy π_k using the stochastic gradient method.
- The stochastic gradient method is used to approximate the Bellman optimality operator T by sampling a subset of the data and computing the gradient of the Bellman optimality operator with respect to the policy parameters. This method is used to update the policy parameters and the value function iteratively.
