The Secret Violence of Henry Miller Katy Masuga, 2011 Miller as a writer whose work does something more profound and violent to literary conventions than produce novel effects it announces the possibility of difference and instability within language itself Henry Miller is a cult figure in the world of fiction in part due to having been banned for obscenity for nearly thirty years Alongside the liberating effect of his explicit treatment of sexuality however Miller developed a provocative form of writing that encourages the reader to question language as a stable communicative tool and to consider the act of writing as an ongoing mode of creation always in motion perpetually establishing itself and creating meaning through that very motion Katy Masuga provides a new reading of Miller that is alert to the aggressively and self consciously writerly form of his work Critiquing the categorization of Miller into specific literary genres through an examination of the small body of critical texts on his oeuvre Masuga draws on Deleuze and Guattari's concept of a minor literature Blanchot's infinite curve and Bataille's theory of puerile language while also considering Miller in relation to other writers including Proust Rilke and William Carlos Williams She shows how Miller defies conventional modes of writing subverting language from within Katy Masuga is Adjunct Professor of British and American literature cinema and the arts in the Cultural Studies Department at the University of Paris III Sorbonne Nouvelle

Roland Barthes Mike Gane, Nicholas Gane, 2004 Roland Barthes Andrew Brown, 1992 The first serious analysis of Barthes as a writer with specific aesthetic techniques this fresh and original study focuses on some of the ways he discusses the nature of his own writing The first two chapters examine the key but ambiguous term of drift a word which raises questions about how exactly Barthes's writing develops across three decades about the scientific legitimacy of his concepts and about his own frequently fraught relation to the scientific discourses around him especially psychoanalysis Two typical discursive maneuvers that structure his writing naming and framing are then shown to generate particular aesthetic effects which cause complications for some of his theoretical stances Barthes's fascination for the idea that all writing is a kind of scribble closer to the visual arts than to speech is investigated in depth and his latent animosity against speech as such is made manifest The final chapter suggests that for Barthes the real can leave its mark on writing only as a disturbing indeed traumatic trace Roland Barthes et l'aventure sémiologique Nouredine Mhakkak, 2015
