

A detailed photograph of a physics experiment setup on a wooden table. In the background, a green chalkboard displays a hand-drawn circuit diagram with an ammeter (A) in series and a voltmeter (V) in parallel across a load. To the left of the diagram, the text "~ 220V" is written. On the table, various components are visible: a black-cased analog voltmeter, a glowing incandescent light bulb, a small transformer or coil, a battery, and other electronic parts. A red apple sits on a stack of books to the right. A piece of paper with a circuit diagram is also visible on the left side of the table.
