Marigolds

By Eugenia Collier
1969

Eugenia Collier (b.1928) is an African American writer of stories, plays, essays, and criticism. In this short story, a woman remembers an important moment from her childhood. Skills Focus: In this lesson, you'll practice analyzing how complex characters develop by coming to an important realization. This means paying attention to how they perceive others and the world around them. As you read, take note of the details that show Linabeth coming to new realizations over the course of the story.

- [1] When I think of the hometown of my youth, all that I seem to remember is dust — the brown, crumbly dust of late summer — arid, sterile<sup>1</sup> dust that gets into the eyes and makes them water, gets into the throat and between the toes of bare brown feet. I don't know why I should remember only the dust. Surely there must have been lush green lawns and paved streets under leafy shade trees somewhere in town; but memory is an abstract<sup>2</sup> painting — it does not present things as they are, but rather as they feel. And so, when I think of that time and that place, I remember only the dry September of the dirt roads and grassless yards of the shantytown where I lived. And one other thing I remember, another incongruity<sup>3</sup> of memory — a brilliant splash of sunny yellow against the dust — Miss Lottie's marigolds.

Whenever the memory of those marigolds flashes across my mind, a strange nostalgia<sup>4</sup> comes with it and remains long after the picture has faded. I feel again the chaotic emotions of adolescence, illusive as smoke, yet as real as the potted geranium before me now. Joy and rage and wild animal gladness and shame become tangled together in the multicolored skein of fourteen-going-on-fifteen as I recall that devastating moment when I was suddenly more woman than child, years ago in Miss Lottie's yard. I think of those marigolds at the strangest times; I remember them vividly now as I desperately pass away the time.

1. Sterile (adjective): poor in quality; lifeless
2. Abstract (adjective): dealing with ideas or feelings instead of concrete objects
3. Incongruent (adjective): opposite or not the same; out of place
4. Nostalgia (noun): a longing for the past
