Developing Narrative Comprehension Ute Bohnacker, Natalia Gagarina, 2020-12-15 Comprehension of texts and understanding of questions is a cornerstone of successful human communication Whilst reading comprehension has been thoroughly investigated in the last decade there is surprisingly little research on children s comprehension of picture stories particularly for bilinguals This can be partially explained by the lack of cross culturally robust cross linguistic instruments targeting early narration This book presents an inference based model of narrative comprehension and a tool that grew out of a large scale European project on multilingualism Covering a range of language settings the book uses the Multilingual Assessment Instrument for Narratives to answer the question which narrative comprehension skills bilingual children can be expected to master at a certain age and explores how such comprehension is affected or not affected by linguistic and extra linguistic factors Linking theory to method the book will appeal to researchers in linguistics and psychology and graduate students interested in narrative multilingualism and language acquisition

Assessing Multilingual Children Sharon Armon-Lotem, Jan de Jong, Natalia Meir, 2015-04-28 Second language learners often produce language forms resembling those of children with Specific Language Impairment SLI At present professionals working in language assessment and education have only limited diagnostic instruments to distinguish language impaired migrant children from those who will eventually catch up with their monolingual peers This book presents a comprehensive set of tools for assessing the linguistic abilities of bilingual children It aims to disentangle effects of bilingualism from those of SLI making use of both models of bilingualism and models of language impairment The book s methods oriented focus will make it an essential handbook for practitioners who look for measures which could be adapted to a variety of languages in diverse communities as well as academic researchers

With the ongoing COVID 19 pandemic still affecting many lives globally there have been numerous disruptions of face to face in person language assessments leading many researchers to conduct their language assessments online Despite the necessity of remote language assessments and the convenience they may bring to both assessors and assesseees the potential merits limits and problems of remote testing have not yet been systematically explored and understood This timely Research Topic seeks contributions that mobilize new evidence and or insightful and nuanced discussions to address questions such as can we control online testing so that it is as good as face to face in person testing and if so how Do we have evaluative evidence of such practices and if so how robust is the evidence What adaptations and concerns can and cannot be accommodated at the present time What opportunities are offered by recent technological advances Are there certain conditions in which online testing works better or worse Last but not least how do differences between offline in person language assessments and online remote assessments affect the results of testing The current topic has two main foci the first deals with the assessment of conversational discourse in general and narrative discourse in particular in both children and young adults Communicative competence at the discourse level has been considered an essential and ecologically valid component in language assessments of children and adults for three key reasons 1 this competence is crucial for an individual s everyday functioning and academic and social life 2 it provides information about an individual s socio cognitive and linguistic abilities and 3 it is a versatile test of language skills at the levels of content form use and their integration The second focus is on comparing the results elicited via in person assessments and remote online assessments This Research Topic welcomes empirical articles discussing new evidence perspective and opinion papers on issues at the conceptual methodological interface and methods articles presenting approaches that can offer opportunities for remote testing of developmental discourse supported by recent technological advances Potential themes may include but are not limited to comparisons of remote versus in person testing modes using a within participants research design learner variables such as age gender language status monolingual multilingual and clinical status typically developing children and adults children and adults with clinical conditions such as developmental language disorder autism spectrum disorder which may affect the efficacy of remote testing linguistic variables such as the use of referential and relational devices and mental state language which may be subject to more variations when being assessed remotely new methods that offer opportunities for the remote testing of developmental and adult discourse supported by recent technological advances articles addressing the same research question within developmental narrative discourse but using different i e either online or offline research methods
