

Within 60 days of receipt, the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct reviews Financial Disclosure Statements of filers under its jurisdiction to determine whether the reports have been filed in a timely manner, appear substantially accurate and complete, and comply with applicable conflict of interest laws and rules.⁵¹ If the review indicates a possible problem, the reporting individual is notified and given an opportunity to amend within a specified period.

A filer may also amend a Financial Disclosure Statement on his or her own initiative. Such amendments are normally given a presumption of good faith by the Committee if submitted before the end of the year in which the report was originally filed.⁵²

To amend a Financial Disclosure Statement, a filer may, but is not required to, submit an entirely new form. Instead, an amendment can be in the form of a letter addressed to, and filed with, the Clerk of the House. Both the original filing and the amendment are made public.

Retention of and Public Access to Reports

The House Clerk retains the reports of House Members and employees for six years and the reports of unsuccessful candidates for one year.⁵³ The Clerk makes all forms on file available for inspection by the public within thirty days of receipt.⁵⁴ In addition, pursuant to the Honest Leadership and Open Government Act, the Clerk must make the reports of all Members filed after June 1, 2008 available on a public, searchable website within 45 days of their filing.⁵⁵

Anyone wishing to review a report on file with the Clerk must provide his or her name, occupation, and address; the name of any other person or entity on whose behalf the information is sought; and a statement that he or she is aware of the prohibitions on use of the information.⁵⁶ It is unlawful to use the information contained in Financial Disclosure Statements for any commercial purpose other than new reporting, any unlawful purpose, to establish a filer's credit rating, or for charitable, political, or other solicitations.⁵⁷

⁵¹ Id. § 106.

⁵² The Committee's amendment policy, contained in a letter sent to all Members on April 23, 1986, is included in the appendices to this Manual.
