More Mini Mathematical Murder Mysteries Jill Whieldon, 2019-01-21 We all like to think we can solve a murder given the right clues Here's another chance to use mathematics skills to identify whodunnit following the great success of the first book in the series Mini Mathematical Murder Mysteries The students are given the data or a diagram to solve a problem which is always which of various characters is a murderer To find out the student must solve all or most of the questions on the sheet to identify wrong answers as well as correct ones Problems are staged so there is an element of suspense for the individual and racing between students to solve the mystery The topics covered in this book are appropriate for ages 12 14 years The tasks have been used successfully with older pupils too as a reminder of topics covered previously They would also be suitable for younger pupils who have met the appropriate language and content They are likely to take about 40 minutes but this will depend on the ability of the class to coordinate the different aspects of each task The book is aimed at both teachers and parents Teachers This is a set of consolidation resources rather than a teaching tool They have worked well with a variety of classes often putting the students in pairs to enable them to talk about the methods they re using while they solve the murder The author has found that their cooperative skills have improved as has their ability to plan and delegate in a bid to win Parents Much more fun than having endless mathematics exercises to trawl through Children will engage with the mathematics here presented in an entertaining way Ideal for use in revision or other consolidation exercises They are also great fun for after school clubs such as mathematics clubs seeking to run short activities

Mental Practice: Clinical and Experimental Research in Imagery and Action Observation Magdalena Ietswaart, Andrew J.

Butler, Philip L. Jackson, Martin Gareth Edwards, 2016-05-18 There is now strong evidence demonstrating that the brain simulates action and other functions Such action simulation can be evoked through conscious mental rehearsal of movement or imagery but also through passive action observation watching movements in others Furthermore there is evidence to suggest that mental rehearsal of movement or mental practice can produce improvements normally attributed to practising actual movements It is currently assumed that such improvements are due to neural activation associated with action simulation However the neuroscience of mental practice efficacy is still poorly understood The aim of this research topic is to clarify the underlying mechanisms of mental practice bringing evidence from cognitive neuroscience experimental neuropsychology sport and movement science and clinical neurology It also attempts to address confusion regarding the concepts of imagery and observation which has hampered the progression of mental practice research both scientifically and applied As well as reviews theoretical and position articles this research topic includes original neuroimaging experimental and patient research addressing among others the following issues Neuroimaging studies provide strong evidence for action simulation but the link to behavioural change and functional outcome is weak What is the evidence that mental practice efficacy is driven by neuroplasticity processes evoked by action simulation This research topic includes contributions on neural correlates and behaviour with regards to imagery and action observation Much of the mental practice efficacy evidence comes from longstanding research within sport science However what does mental practice entail in these contexts and to what extent is it compatible with the cognitive neuroscience perspective of action simulation This research topic will include contributions that consider both evidence and concepts with regards to imagery and action observation in an attempt to build an interdisciplinary consensus on the nature and application of mental practice Mental practice is perceived as a promising motor rehabilitation technique but critically there is lack of clarity or consensus on what mental practice treatment should entail It is also not clear what are the most appropriate outcomes to measure imagery ability and cognitive or behavioural change following mental practice A further important issue that needs consideration as part of this research topic is dosage as it is currently unclear how much mental practice is appropriate and whether this depends on patient variables such as age cognitive functioning motor function or pathophysiology
