Conjunctions Andrew Cooper, 2018-06-04 Conjunctions engages separately and connectively with therapeutic social work practice psychoanalytically informed research methods and philosophy as well as contemporary human service organisational cultures and predicaments and the societal dynamics affecting social work and psychoanalysis The chapters are gathered into several thematic sections Practice Organisations Politics Policy and Culture Research and a final chapter on death dying and social work The writing on each topic uses a blend of psychoanalysis social theory and philosophy to illuminate and develop a psycho social account of individual organisational and social processes and dynamics The author draws directly upon his own and others lived experience of clinical work organisational stresses and strains social processes and research to generate conceptualised accounts of inner and outer experiential worlds in the hope of mobilising emotional and thinking responses in his readership Conjunctions is therefore intended to be an intervention in modern professional therapeutic and social life as well as a contribution to understanding it Australian Mothering Carla Pascoe Leahy, Petra Bueskens, 2020-01-28 This collection defines the field of maternal studies in Australia for the first time Leading motherhood researchers explore how mothering has evolved across Australian history as well as the joys and challenges of being a mother today The contributors cover pregnancy birth relationships childcare domestic violence time use work welfare policy and psychology from a diverse range of maternal perspectives Utilising a matricentric feminist framework Australian Mothering foregrounds the experiences emotions and perspectives of mothers to better understand how Australian motherhood has developed historically and contemporaneously Drawing upon their combined sociological and historical expertise Bueskens and Pascoe Leahy have carefully curated a collection that presents compelling research on past and present perspectives on maternity in Australia which will be relevant to researchers advocates and policy makers interested in the changing role of mothers in Australian society The Maternal Experience Margo Lowy, 2020-11-29 The Maternal Experience explores the powerful and dynamic nature of maternal ambivalence and disrupts the conventional narrative of the mother's lived experience by arguing that encounters with feelings of hatred are both universal and have the capacity to stimulate and enrich her maternal love The book draws on the author's personal mothering experiences those of other women and examples from film to inspire new introspection about the everyday maternal experience Lowy takes a psychosocial approach to weave thinking from selected psychoanalytic and contemporary accounts together with personal stories to explore how maternal ambivalence operates and how mothering is sourced in psychic struggles between loving and hating feelings in an atmosphere that is rife with social and personal expectations and prohibitions By reworking the experience of maternal ambivalence the book secures an understanding of the mother's feelings of hatred as a catalyst for her love and allows these maligned and taboo emotions to be named and reframed into acceptable and transformative feelings Brought alive by examples from film and first hand experience this book is fascinating reading for academics and students of psychology maternal and women's studies and sociology as well as practitioners in the fields of psychology social work medicine and counselling Recognition of Maternal Identity in Preterm and Fullterm Mothers Mary T. Zabielski, 1992 Women, Mothers, Subjects Maura Sheehy, 2015-10-14 This collection drawn from twelve years of the influential journal

Studies in Gender and Sexuality offers a groundbreaking advance in thinking and theorizing about what happens to women when they become mothers. It explores how women are changed and shaped by interaction with their children and the cultural constructs about motherhood in which they are embedded. Distinguished psychoanalysts, philosophers, feminists, gender and cultural theorists explore the meeting place of cultural representations of motherhood, maternal theory and mothers interacting in the clinical setting and with their children to illuminate how the process of becoming a mother creates and informs female subjectivity, identity, desire, expression, aggression, ambition, shame, envy and relationships. Contributors find mothers to be complex subjects negotiating rich hybrid identities that explode received notions of maternal and even female subjectivity in their complexity. They create an exciting and very accessible new set of ideas and templates for thinking about mothers and women that will be of value to clinicians, academics and mothers alike. This book was originally published as a special issue of Studies in Gender and Sexuality.

Maternal Role Attainment and Maternal Identity in Mothers of Premature Infants Alaina Camille Bacon, 2000. Current literature regarding maternal role attainment and maternal identity has been based on findings generated from research conducted with mothers of full term infants. Mothers of premature infants experience numerous and significant differences before, during and after the birth of their child which may impact or alter the way in which they experience maternal role attainment or maternal identity development. This qualitative and exploratory study sought to compare preestablished theories of maternal role attainment and maternal identity to the experiences of mothers of premature infants. Twenty mothers of infants born prior to 37 weeks gestation were administered a semistructured interview as part of a larger study addressing the emotional impact of parenting and premature infants. Responses were examined and found to concur with current theories of maternal role attainment and maternal identity. In addition to these findings, mothers of premature infants were also found to emphasize the emotional impact of specific events. These responses were examined and found to encompass four common themes: contact decisions, making and cognitive understanding, mastery of nontraditional caregiving tasks and external recognition of maternal identity. A hypothetical conceptual framework regarding these responses and their significance is offered, suggesting these events may serve as triggers for the process of maternal role attainment.

The Mother in Psychoanalysis and Beyond Rosalind Mayo, Christina Moutsou, 2016-10-04. The question of what it means to be a mother is a very contentious topic in psychoanalysis and in wider society. The Mother in Psychoanalysis and Beyond explores our relationship to the maternal through psychoanalysis, philosophy, art and political and gender studies. Over two years, a group of psychotherapists and members of the public met at the Philadelphia Association for a series of seminars on the Maternal. In the discussions that followed, a chasm opened up slowly and painfully between the idealised longings and fantasies we all share and the realities of maternal experiences. Here were met the great silences of love, loss, longing, memories, desire, hatred and ambivalence. This book is the result of this bringing together in conversation and reflections of what so often seems unsayable about the Mother It examines how issues of personal and gender identity are shaped by the ideals of separation from the mother the fears and anxiety of merging with the mother and how this has often led in psychoanalysis and society to holding mothers responsible for a variety of personal and social ills and problems in which maternal vulnerability is denied and silenced There are two main themes running throughout the book Matricide and Maternal Subjectivity On the theme of matricide several contributors discuss the ways in which the discourse and narratives of the Mother have been silenced on a sociocultural level and within psychoanalysis and philosophy in favour of discourses that promote independence autonomy power and the avoidance and denial of our fundamental helplessness and vulnerability On the theme of maternal subjectivity several chapters look at the actual experience of mothering and or our relationship to our mother to highlight the ways in which the maternal is intimately connected with human subjectivity The Mother in Psychoanalysis and Beyond provides new and provocative thinking about the maternal and its place in various contemporary discourses It will appeal to psychoanalysts psychotherapists and psychologists of different schools scholars and advanced students of art gender studies politics and philosophy as well as anyone interested in maternity studies and the relationship between the maternal and human subjectivity

The Maternal Tug: Ambivalence, Identity, and Agency Adams Sarah LaChance, 2020-02-01 While the existence of maternal ambivalence has been evident for centuries it has only recently been recognized as central to the lived experience of mothering This accessible yet intellectually rigorous interdisciplinary collection demonstrates its presence and meaning in relation to numerous topics such as pregnancy birth Caesarean sections sleep self estrangement helicopter parenting poverty environmental degradation depression anxiety queer mothering disability neglect filicide and war rape Its authors deny the assumption that mothers who experience ambivalence are bad evil unnatural or insane Moreover historical records and cross cultural narratives indicate that maternal ambivalence appears in a wide range of circumstances but that it becomes unmanageable in circumstances of inequity deprivation and violence From this premise the authors in this collection raise imperative ethical social and political questions suggesting possibilities for vital cultural transformations These candid explorations demand we rethink our basic assumptions about how mothering is experienced in everyday life

African American and Latina

Adolescent Mothers Ruiqing Yu, 2021 This qualitative study was undertaken to explore adolescent mothers identity development The focus was their identity as an adolescent an ethnic racial minority and a mother and how these identities interact with their mental well being and or distress The birth rate among Latina and African American teenager girls is higher than Caucasian girls and teen childbearing is often associated with adverse consequences This population needs more attention and help Most studies with quantitative designs were unable to capture teen mothers insights into how their identity develops after giving birth and how this development impacts their mental health status This study contributes qualitative data to the field to investigate all three identities together and their combined impact on mental health status Erikson's Psychosocial Development Theory including its expansion by Marcia's Identity Status model and Mercer's Becoming a Mother BAM theory are the theoretical framework for this study A phenomenological research design was utilized for the interview method and data analyses The six participants were aged 16-19 and included 3 African American females 2 multiracial American females and 1 Latina American female Eighteen individual semi-structured interviews were conducted three with each participant Participants reported prioritizing the forming of maternal identity The lived experiences of early childbearing overshadowed their development of adolescent identity and ethnic racial identity was not associated with other identities Participants' maternal identity was most connected to their reporting of perinatal depression with various risk and protective factors related to distress Strengths implications of the findings for counseling and limitations corresponding to the future study were discussed

An Exploratory Study of Maternal Identity Among Maternally Bereaved Women Jennifer Ingrassia Desaulniers, University of Hartford. Graduate Institute of Professional Psychology, 2013 This qualitative study investigated the impact of mother loss during the adolescent period of development on women's feelings of competency and sense of their own maternal identity Ten women ranging in age from 29 to 50 were interviewed using a semi-structured interview guide created by the investigator Demographic information was also collected from the participants Data was analyzed manually by the investigator using the principals of grounded theory Fifty-eight codes emerged through analysis of interview transcripts In addition 33 codes from previous research on the experience of early mother loss and later motherhood were supported If a code was endorsed by at least five 50% participants it was defined as a major theme A total of 28 major themes were identified If a code was endorsed by at least three 30% but no more than four 40% participants it was defined as a minor theme A total of 24 minor themes were identified The 52 total themes were then organized into groups guided by six research questions Analysis of these groups produced nine major findings which are reported and discussed Study limitations and recommendations for future research are provided Implications for clinical practice including suggestions for professionals and those directly impacted by early mother loss are discussed
