them to find ways to rebuild both physical infrastructure and the local economy. Doing this effectively requires an understanding of how various parts of the community are interconnected as well as information as to which revitalization approaches have succeeded in the past. Department of Homeland Security, Federal Emergency Management Agency, 2013-02-10 Following certain disaster events state tribal and or local governments may wish to undertake a long term recovery program in which FEMA using its long term community recovery assessment tool indicates that supplemental federal support is not required The FEMA Long Term Community Recovery LTCR Self Help Guide guide is intended to provide state tribal and local governments with a framework for implementing their own long term community recovery planning process after a significant disaster event It is assumed that any state tribal or local government undertaking a LTCR Self Help program will have qualified staff to manage the planning process Every disaster is unique but there are basic principles that can be applied to assist in long term recovery from the disaster This LTCR Self Help Guide Provides step by step guidance for implementing a LTCR planning program based on the experience obtained and the lessons learned by teams of planners architects and engineers over a period of several years and multiple experiences in comprehensive long term community recovery Incorporates case studies for each of the steps in a LTCR program Offers guidance and suggestions for involving the public in the recovery program Provides method for developing a LTCR plan that is a flexible and usable blueprint for community recovery The Self Help Guide is based on the experiences gained and lessons learned by communities in developing and implementing a long term community recovery program The guide incorporates the knowledge gained by dozens of community planners as they undertook the LTCR program and developed LTCR plans in disasters that varied in scope from a tornado in a small town to the World Trade Center disaster There also may be a need for communities to modify the process set forth in this guide to suit their particular needs It is important that each community assess its own capability to undertake LTCR planning The guidance provided in this guide is based on a process that has worked but where outside technical assistance has been provided If after reviewing the guide local officials do not feel they have the capacity to lead and manage this effort consideration should be given to soliciting assistance from any of the resources listed in STEP 3 SECURING OUTSIDE SUPPORT The primary function of the LTCR Self Help Guide is to provide a planning template to communities that have been struck by a disaster and or the community has the resources to undertake a LTCR program on its own But this guide also may be useful for FEMA LTCR technical assistance teams as they work with communities on long term recovery and may even be of assistance as a tool for teaching community preparedness in terms of putting infrastructure in place for a LTCR program before a disaster occurs
