From Predator to Prey Letlhokwa George Mpedi, 2025-10-31 In the stillness of the African bush leadership reveals itself in its most primal form Here where the survival of each species depends on discipline instinct coordination and trust its lessons arise from the most unexpected sources For Letlhokwa George Mpedi a journey through South Africa's Kruger National Park transformed from merely a game drive to a masterclass in leadership Observing the intricate dynamics of animal behaviour Letlhokwa began to trace compelling parallels between the natural order and human systems of power Through this lens this book explores how nature's codes can inform leadership dynamics Drawing from a distinctly African approach to leadership which emphasises community and interdependence From Predator to Prey explores the unwritten rule of law that governs the wild and its applications for humanity From the silent cooperation of lionesses on a hunt to the matriarchal approach of elephants and even the territorial instincts of wild dogs this book offers a vivid and thought provoking perspective on how nature's instincts can inform our understanding of leadership dynamics As Letlhokwa tracks and interprets the behaviours and strategies of various species he challenges conventional ideas of leadership based solely on top down control Through this observation he invites a critical rethinking of conventional leadership paradigms In place of rigid hierarchies he presents a model that values the very tenets of ubuntu leadership as he offers a compelling argument for leadership rooted in nature's enduring logic Letlhokwa George Mpedi is a Professor of Labour and Social Security Law and the Vice Chancellor and Principal of the University of Johannesburg UJ He completed his B Juris degree 1996 and LLB degree 1998 at Vista University In 2001 the LLM degree in Labour Law was conferred upon him by the then Rand Afrikaans University now UJ and the LLD degree in Mercantile Law was conferred upon him in 2006 by UJ

Marine Ecosystem Restoration (MER) - Challenges and New Horizons Brian Silliman, Avigdor Abelson, Christine Angelini, Gesche Krause, Megan Irene Saunders, Tjisse Van Der Heide, 2023-10-23

Worldwide marine ecosystems have been lost and degraded due to anthropogenic disturbances For example oyster reefs have declined by at least 85% coral reefs by 19% seagrasses by 29% North American salt marshes by 42% and mangroves by 35% from the early 19th century Deepwater reefs and deep sea vents are not immune and have also been reduced in extent in many areas Factors driving these losses include habitat destruction pollution invasive species overfishing trawling mining and more recently climate change effects such as ocean warming species range changes and acidification These habitat declines are occurring at a time when marine waters are being used at or near their maximum productive capacity to meet the contemporary needs of an ever increasing human population Because coastal and marine ecosystems generate some of the richest biodiversity hotspots on Earth and provide critical ecosystem services including storm protection fisheries production and carbon storage over 1 billion US dollars have been spent globally in an attempt to halt and reverse observed declines Early conservation efforts aimed at protecting these valuable and threatened habitats focused on reducing human impacts and physical stressors However with habitat degradation continuing and sometimes increasing in rate it is now clear conservation alone will not be sufficient to protect and reestablish coastal ecosystems Habitat restoration although in existence for many decades has recently been elevated as a new primary strategy to stem and even reverse coastal habitat loss The call for increasing investment in restoration efforts has emerged with significant advances in propagule rearing and dispersion of habitat forming organisms e g oysters seagrasses corals In addition restoration resources are increasingly allocated by governments and or large corporations with the aim to for example fix past landscape engineering efforts that had unintended environmental consequences Such investments are being made to i provide jobs for those unemployed during economic downturns ii restore ecosystems destroyed by natural disasters and stressors iii increase coastal defense in response to increased frequency of intense storms and or iv compensate for pollution and development driven habitat degradation Conservation practitioners have traditionally been skeptical to invest heavily in restoration at large scales because of the high cost per area 10 000 5 000 000 US ha for coastal vs 500 5 000 US ha for terrestrial systems to replant coastal ecosystems and or the high chance that the restored ecosystems will not live long e g outplanted corals For restoration to be effective and employed as a primary method of coastal conservation at relevant scales we must improve its efficiency lower costs and rapidly share and incorporate advances One crucial step will be to identify when and where restoration attempts have been carried out according to state of art ecological theory and gauge their success Another is generating synthesis studies that focus both within and across ecosystems to identify efficiencies adaptations and innovations Work that shows theoretical and methodological innovations in specific ecosystems as well as across systems will be critical to pushing all fields of MER forward Although there is rapidly increasing interest and investment the field of marine ecosystem restoration is just beginning to undergo synthesis Therefore the aim of this Research Topic is to bring together research contributions to help address this synthesis need provide a spotlight for recent innovations enhance our understanding of successful methods in marine ecosystem restoration and promote integration of ecological sociological and engineering theory into restoration practices
