By Joseph Gornall

Part 1 – Teaching

This paper aims to critically analyse my personal pedagogical practice, with reference to personal values and experiences that have influenced the educational journey to date. This will be reinforced with educational theorists' notions, resulting in an area for further academic study.

Characteristics of an effective teacher

It is common to hear, that you can identify a good teacher (Hayes, D. 2006). This is known as tacit knowledge, as it is knowledge that is difficult to transfer to another person by means of verbal or written expression. However, there are numerous characteristics that have been suggested to reflect an effective teacher.

The main characteristics that I consider to be important, when attempting to identify an effective teacher are; passionate, open-mindedness, knowledge of students, and being an effective role model. These characteristics resonate with my education and pedagogical practice. Previous teachers of mine have possessed these characteristics, and I think that because they had these definable characteristics; I have chosen a career in education.

Passion

Passion stems from love for the job and subject that is being taught, and can develop independence in learning. Liston and Garrison (2004) stated that love influences reactions and responses to student's thoughts and emotions. Their research stated:

"When we teach, we teach with ideas and feelings. When we interact with our [pupils], we react and they respond with thoughts and emotions... Teaching is an activity that brings one's emotions and mind to bear on subject matter and on connecting [pupils] with the subject matter. (p5)" (Liston & Garrison 2004).

Liston and Garrison (2004) suggest that modern teachers are losing sight of the importance of emotion in teaching (Hayes, D. 2006). However, I don't agree that it is the teachers who are struggling to identify with student emotion, but instead the students who lack passion for education. Research has shown that there are a growing number of students who do classwork for the sole reason; it was set. Instilling passion for the subject could counter students who do work because it has been set by the teacher, as opposed to regarding it as something worth doing (Fried, 2001). Further development of subject specific careers advice could enhance their desire to learn through passion. Fried argued that students need to care about what they learn in order to develop a positive disposition toward learning (Fried 2001).

Day (2004) thinks passion in teaching is essential to all effective pedagogical practice. I think that the teachers who had the greatest positive impact on my studies instilled a passion for music. This passion was imparted through their ability to go beyond the academic curriculum and into a broader knowledge of

Teacher Learning and Leadership Ann Lieberman, Carol Campbell, Anna Yashkina, 2016-08-25 Teacher Learning and Leadership asserts that teachers should be put at the center of creating developing organizing implementing and sharing their own ideas for school change rather than being passive recipients of knowledge from the outside It argues that there is tremendous potential for the good of students and the professionalization of teaching when teachers work collaboratively to develop their own and their colleagues professional knowledge and practices and are supported by school and system leaders unions and government The book draws on the groundbreaking work of the Teacher Learning and Leadership Program in Ontario and uses an in depth case study to illustrate its points It demonstrates how professional development built around collaboration teacher leadership curriculum development technology and pedagogy can be organized in a way that redistributes control and responsibility to teachers thereby instilling a genuine sense of pride and accomplishment in their work This book is a sincere outreach from the authors who advocate for the professional development of by and for teachers as individuals and importantly as a collective profession The authors argue that projects like the TLLP a joint initiative between the Ontario Ministry of Education and the Ontario Teachers Federation can radically and positively transform teachers knowledge skills and practices The book provides an important model for school change led by teachers rather than experts in partnership with school and system leaders and is a fascinating read for all those concerned with teaching teacher development and educational change

Developing Teachers as Leaders Phil Quirke, Joy Kreeft Peyton, Jill Burton, Carla L. Reichmann, Latricia Trites, 2021-01-04 This book focuses on reflective writing guiding teachers to recognize their potential as professional leaders

The shift to online and blended learning models now favored in education encourages a broader understanding of leadership particularly its growing relevance to teachers These models combined with reflective writing foster flexible inclusive teacher learning that responds to each teacher s strengths can be used individually and collaboratively to develop teachers as leaders inside and outside the classroom who are critically involved in creating their own professional learning environments The authors examine leadership in a global range of teaching contexts each chapter raising diverse issues for teachers aspiring to be leaders in this post COVID world All royalties from this book are donated to the Instituto dos Cegos da Paraiba Adalgisa Cunha ICPAC a school in Jo o Pessoa Para ba Brazil that serves the low vision and blind community in the area For years the Institute has collaborated as a supervised internship site for various teacher education university programs providing inspiring field work experiences such as those described in Chapter 4 by Carla Reichmann Brill is proud to support this important cause and match the donation to the Instituto dos Cegos da Paraiba Adalgisa Cunha ICPAC
