Capturing Social and Behavioral Domains and Measures in Electronic Health Records Institute of Medicine, Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice, Committee on the Recommended Social and Behavioral Domains and Measures for Electronic Health Records, 2015-01-08 Determinants of health like physical activity levels and living conditions have traditionally been the concern of public health and have not been linked closely to clinical practice. However, if standardized social and behavioral data can be incorporated into patient electronic health records (EHRs), those data can provide crucial information about factors that influence health and the effectiveness of treatment. Such information is useful for diagnosis, treatment choices, policy, health care system design, and innovations to improve health outcomes and reduce health care costs. Capturing Social and Behavioral Domains and Measures in Electronic Health Records Phase 2 identifies domains and measures that capture the social determinants of health to inform the development of recommendations for the meaningful use of EHRs. This report is the second part of a two-part study. The Phase 1 report identified 17 domains for inclusion in EHRs. This report pinpoints 12 measures related to 11 of the initial domains and considers the implications of incorporating them into all EHRs. This book includes three chapters from the Phase 1 report in addition to the new Phase 2 material. Standardized use of EHRs that include social and behavioral domains could provide better patient care, improve population health, and enable more informative research. The recommendations of Capturing Social and Behavioral Domains and Measures in Electronic Health Records Phase 2 will provide valuable information on which to base problem identification, clinical diagnoses, patient treatment, outcomes assessment, and population health measurement. Research on Emotion and

Learning: Contributions from Latin America Camilo Hurtado-Parrado, Carlos Gantiva, Leonardo A. Ortega, Alexander Gómez-A, Lucas Cuenya, Javier Leonardo Rico, 2020-05-11 Latin America has increased its share of world scientific publications by nearly twofold during the last two decades, approximately from 2 to 4%. Despite this positive trend, the scholarly impact of scientific research produced in the region, measured in terms of citation rate, remains low. Two interrelated factors that contribute to this situation are that most research groups tend to work in isolation or in local, sporadic collaboration, and results are often published in journals that are not indexed in major citation databases, e.g., SCOPUS or Web of Science. Ultimately, part of Latin American high-quality research seems to remain hidden from the rest of the world. Over the last decades, an important number of Latin American scientists have developed fruitful research agendas on questions on learning and emotion, focusing on basic and/or translational research with humans and other animal models and implementing diverse methodologies. Notwithstanding the important contributions of these research programs, Latin American research on emotion and learning has followed the overall trend of other research fields throughout the region, namely, remaining partially hidden from the large scientific community of the world. This Research Topic aimed to engage researchers from Latin America to share their empirical and conceptual work on learning and emotion. Ultimately, this effort was expected to strengthen and integrate our regional community of experts enhance global networking and establish new challenges and developments for future investigation      The Nature of Business Transformation Richard Kelly,2022-03-17

Offering a vital critical contribution to debates on gender sexuality and schooling in South Africa this book highlights how South African educational practices discourses and structures normalize cisheteronormativity along with how these are resisted within schools and through contemporary forms of activism Not only does it add fresh insights to the existing research literature on gender sexualities and schooling it also underscores the valuable contributions of queer and transgender social movements which have made influential legislative teaching learning and support contributions to education Drawing on ethnographic research with queer and transgender activists teachers school managers parents and school attending youth the book provides everyday real life quotes and observations offering a deeply critical contribution to the debates on gender and sexualities education and activism Using spatial and affect theories it troubles the assumptions that frame this field of research to make a novel contribution to the national and international literature and research The book provides research based insights for thinking about and calls for informed action to challenging cisheteronormativity within and beyond schools      The long and short of mental time travel-- self-projection over time-scales large and small James M. Broadway,Claire M. Zedelius,Jonathan W. Schooler,Simon Grondin,2015-07-02

Researchers working in many fields of psychology and neuroscience are interested in the temporal structure of experience as well as the experience of time at scales of a few milliseconds up to a few seconds as well as days months years and beyond This Research Topic supposes that broadly speaking the field of time psychology can be organized by distinguishing between perceptual and conceptual time scales Dealing with conceptual time mental time travel also called mental simulation self projection episodic semantic memory prospection foresight allows humans and perhaps other animals to imagine and plan events and experiences in their personal futures based in large part on memories of their personal pasts as well as general knowledge Moreover contents of human language and thought are fundamentally organized by a temporal dimension enmeshed with it so thoroughly that it is usually expressible only through spatial metaphors But what might such notions have to do with experienced durations of events lasting milliseconds up to a few seconds during the so called present moment of perception action cycle time This Research Topic is organized around the general premise that by considering how mental time travel might scale down to time perception and vice versa no less progress and integrative synthesis within and across scientific domains might be facilitated Bipolar configurations of future and past orientations of the self may be repeated in parallel across conceptual and perceptual time scales subsumed by a general Janus like feedforward feedback system for goal pursuit As an example it is notable that the duality of prospection and semantic episodic memory operating at conceptual time scales has an analogue in perception action cycle time namely the interplay of anticipatory attention and working memory Authors from all areas of psychology and neuroscience are encouraged to submit articles of any format accepted by the journal Original Research Methods Hypothesis Theory Reviews etc which might speak to questions about time and temporal phenomena at long and or short time scales Opening Doors Janet Elder,Joe Cortina,2013-01-10
