Dear Ms. Walker,

I am writing to express my heartfelt gratitude for your effort in my child's education. I have seen enormous growth in his intellectual capacity, social interactions, and other crucial development elements. Your dedication towards his studies has helped create a fantastic learning environment.

I appreciate the countless hours of grading, lesson planning, and the time spent after school to help him become a better learner. As a teacher, you have touched his life like few others have, and his progress is a testament to your tremendous impact.

Teaching is often a thankless job, but I wanted to take a moment to thank you for your outstanding work with him. Thank you for giving him confidence when he felt unaided and picking him up when he stumbled. And for making him see that he can achieve anything he sets his mind upon.

One kind word from a great teacher like you can change a child's life. Your words of encouragement will forever echo in our hearts.

With sincere gratitude,

[YOUR NAME]

The Adoption Plan Jack Neubauer, 2025-03-18 During the tumultuous years of World War II and the Cold War new global humanitarian ideas and practices coalesced around the cause of saving the children in China How did China's children become archetypal victims who ignited a new global humanitarian imagination And who would prevail in the transnational contest to control the vast quantities of aid flowing into China on their behalf The Adoption Plan offers a new history of the rise of global humanitarianism that places the recipients administrators and critics of humanitarian aid in China at the center of the story Analyzing how the adoption plan for international child sponsorship became one of the most popular fundraising strategies for humanitarian work in China and across the world Jack Neubauer explores how the globalization of humanitarian aid was linked to new practices of global intimacy that enabled donors to build personal relationships with Chinese children across geographic and cultural divides Drawing on hundreds of letters written by Chinese children to foreign sponsors and extensive research in Chinese archives Neubauer shows how China's Nationalist and Communist parties mobilized the emotional bonds between children and sponsors to secure international support for their competing political projects By the 1950s child sponsorship and international adoption had become the most hotly contested humanitarian programs in Cold War East Asia Upending the conventional view of humanitarianism as a tool of Western influence The Adoption Plan demonstrates that it was often the Chinese recipients of aid who were best able to control its material and ideological uses
