Handbook of Speech-Language Therapy in Sub-Saharan Africa Ulrike M. Lüdtke, Edward Kija, Mathew Kinyua Karia, 2023-02-03 This book synthesizes research on language development and communication disability in Sub Saharan Africa and highlights best practices for providing speech and language therapy services to individuals with language communication and hearing disorders across the lifespan The book brings together a wide range of international contributions from various disciplines such as speech language pathology audiology developmental psychology language education social work neurology neuropsychology pediatrics linguistics pedagogy and phonetics to provide perspectives on problems challenges ideas concepts and models to serve the people in Sub Saharan Africa Key areas of coverage include Challenges for speech language therapists in the health sector Community awareness and the sustainable delivery of services Culture specific support of communication and language development in early childhood Malnutrition dysphagia feeding difficulties pediatric HIV and related issues Communication disability treatments including assessment and intervention augmentative and alternative communication AAC and issues specific to bilingualism and biliteracy Inclusive education of children with communication disorders with case studies from Rwanda Tanzania Kenya and South Africa The Handbook of Speech Language Therapy in Sub Saharan Africa is an essential reference for researchers professors and graduate students as well as clinicians therapists and other professionals in developmental psychology speech language pathology and therapy social work neuropsychology pediatrics special education community based rehabilitation and all related disciplines The Education Triple Cocktail Brahm Fleisch, 2018-08-15 The Education Triple Cocktail brings together rigorous quantitative and qualitative research on a new approach to improving foundational teaching and learning for schoolchildren living in working class poor and remote rural communities in resource constrained systems like South Africa At the core of this book is the theory and evidence for a powerful new interlocking and mutually reinforcing change model Inspired by the AIDS treatment story the three pronged approach of structured daily lesson plans appropriate and high quality educational materials and one on one instructional coaching to help teachers transform their instructional practices in early grade classrooms shows that it will improve learning outcomes For education systems defined by low levels of early grade learning and profoundly unequal outcomes The Education Triple Cocktail offers a theoretically informed evidence based way forward This book will be of immense use to teachers students of Education policymakers and parents Self-directed learning research: An imperative for transforming the educational landscape Elsa Mentz, Thabisile Buthelezi, Josef de Beer, Adri du Toit, Aubrey Golightly, Sarah Gravett, Marietjie Havenga, Anita Lubbe, Judah P. Makonye, Neal Petersen, Paulinah Phahamane, Jessica Pool, H.J. (Hennie) Steyn, Johannes (Hannes) L. van der Walt, Charl Wolhuter, 2016-12-31 This book will benefit specialists in the field of the education sciences It represents significant progress in knowledge production Self directed learning has become increasingly important not only for education in South Africa but also for education sciences in the international arena This is a result of the changing education landscape caused by the demands of the 21st century as well as the rapid change in knowledge production. Learners should be equipped with skills to take responsibility for their own learning. New innovative strategies should be incorporated into teaching and learning in order to meet the changing demands in education. Traditional teacher-centred practices are still the norm in most South African schools and higher education institutions and do not adequately prepare students for lifelong learning in the 21st century. The content focuses on the theory behind self-directed learning, explores strategies such as cooperative learning, problem-based learning, case-based teaching, and large group teaching that enhance self-directed learning, and the use of blended learning in a self-directed learning environment. The book demonstrates how self-directed learning can be enhanced in mathematics, computer science, and life science education and through the use of student tutors for geography. Digital technology could, for example, also be used in innovative ways for education in isiZulu folk poetry. The findings are based on original empirical research and a sound theoretical conceptual framework. In an environment of rapidly changing knowledge production, this book responds to the challenge of how to equip learners with the necessary skills to take responsibility for their own learning. The book presents innovative teaching and learning strategies for meeting the changing demands in education. Group activities, the responsibilities of learners, and the obstacles that hinder their learning are analysed, and the way in which educators can support them is discussed. Educational values such as mutual trust are discussed, and self-directed assessment is explored. This is a timely collective work authored by experts who subscribe to the approach of self-directed learning. Educators should discover new teaching and learning strategies and value the integration of self-directed learning in the classroom.

Lexical Tone Perception in Infants and Young Children: Empirical studies and theoretical perspectives Leher Singh, Denis Burnham, Jessica Hay, Liquan Liu, Karen Mattock, 2019-11-20

In psycholinguistic research, there has traditionally been a strong emphasis on understanding how particular language types are processed and learned. In particular, Romance and Germanic languages (e.g. English, French, German) have until recently received more attention than other types such as Chinese languages. This has led to selective emphasis on the phonological building blocks of European languages: consonants and vowels, to the exclusion of lexical tones, which like consonants and vowels determine lexical meaning but unlike consonants and vowels are based on pitch variations. Lexical tone is pervasive; it is used in at least half of the world's languages (Maddieson, 2013) (e.g. most Asian and some African, Central American, and European languages). This Research Topic brings together a collection of recent empirical research on the processing and representation of lexical tones across the lifespan, with an emphasis on advancing knowledge on how tone systems are acquired. The articles focus on various aspects of tone: early perception of tones, influences of tone on word learning, the acquisition of new tone systems, and production of tones. One set of articles reports on tone perception at the earliest stage of development in infants learning either tone or non-tone languages. Tsao and Chen et al. demonstrate that infants' sensitivity to Mandarin lexical tones, as well as pitch, improves over the first year of life in native and non-native learners in contrast to traditional accounts of perceptual narrowing for consonants and vowels Gtz et al report a different pattern of perception for Cantonese tones and further demonstrate influences of methodological approaches on infants tone sensitivity Fan et al demonstrate that sensitivity to less well studied properties of tone languages such as neutral tone may develop after the first year of life Cheng and Lee ask a similar question in an electrophysiological study and report effects of stimulus salience on infants neural response to native tones In a complementary set of studies focused on tone sensitivity in word learning Burnham et al demonstrate that infants bind tones to newly learned words if they are learning a tone language either monolingually or bilingually although it was also found that object word binding was influenced by the properties of individual tones Liu and Kager chart a developmental trajectory over the second year of life in which infants narrow in their interpretation of non native tones Choi et al investigate how learning a tone language can influence uptake of other suprasegmental properties of language such as stress and demonstrate that native tone sensitivity in children can facilitate stress sensitivity when learning a stress based language Finally two studies focus on sensitivity to pitch in a sub class tone languages pitch accent languages In a study on Japanese children s abilities to recognise words they know Ota et al demonstrate a limited sensitivity to native pitch contrasts in toddlers In contrast Ramachers et al demonstrate comparatively strong sensitivity to pitch in native and non native speakers of a different pitch accent system Limburghian when learning new words Several studies focus on learning new tone systems In a training study with school aged children Kasisopa et al demonstrate that tone language experience increases children s abilities to learn new tone contrasts Poltrock et al demonstrate similar advantages of tone experience in learning new tone systems in adults And in an electrophysiological study Liu et al demonstrate order effects in adults neural responses to new tones discussing implications for learning tone languages as an adult Finally Hannah et al demonstrate that extralinguistic cues such as facial expression can support adults learning of new tone systems In three studies investigating tone production Rattansone et al report the results of a study demonstrating kindergartners asynchronous mastery of tones delayed acquisition of tone sandhi forms relative to base forms In a study interrogating a corpus of adult tone production Han et al demonstrate that mothers produce tones in a distinct manner when speaking to infants tone differences are emphasised more when speaking to infants than to adults Combining perception and production of tones Wong et al report asynchronous development of tone perception and tone production in children The Research Topic also includes a series of Opinion pieces and Commentaries addressing the broader relevance of tone and pitch to the study of language acquisition Curtin and Werker discuss ways in which tone can be integrated into their model of infant language development PRIMIR Best discusses the phonological status of lexical tones and considers how recent empirical research on tone perception bears on this question Kager focuses on how language learners distinguish lexical tones from other sources of pitch variation e g affective and pragmatic that also inform language comprehension Finally Antoniou and Chin unite evidence of tone sensitivity from children and adults and discuss how these areas of research can be mutually informative Psycholinguistic studies of lexical tone acquisition have burgeoned over the past 13 years This collection of empirical studies and opinion pieces provides a state of the art panoply of the psycholinguistic study of lexical tones and demonstrate its coming of age The articles in this Research Topic will help address the hitherto Eurocentric non tone language research emphasis and will contribute to an expanding narrative of speech perception speech production and language acquisition that includes all of the world s languages Importantly these studies underline the scientific promise of drawing from tone languages in psycholinguistic research the research questions raised by lexical tone are unique and distinct from those typically applied to more widely studied languages and populations The comprehensive study of language acquisition can only benefit from this expanded focus

Sharing Less Commonly Taught Languages in Higher Education Emily Heidrich Uebel,Angelika Kraemer,Luca Giupponi,2023-12-22 This edited volume highlights how institutions programs and less commonly taught language LCTL instructors can collaborate and think across institutional boundaries bringing together voices representing different approaches to LCTL sharing to highlight affordances and challenges across institutions in this collection of essays Sharing Less Commonly Taught Languages in Higher Education showcases how innovation and reform can make LCTL programs and courses more attractive to students whose interests and needs might be overlooked in traditional language programs The volume focuses on how institutions programs and LCTL instructors can work together collaborating and thinking across institutional boundaries to explore innovative solutions for offering a wider range of languages and levels With challenges including instructor isolation difficulty in offering advanced courses or sustaining course sequences and minimal availability of pedagogical materials compared to commonly taught languages to overcome this collection is a vital resource for language educators and language program administrators The Open Access version of this book available at www.taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivative Licence CC BY NC ND 4 0 license
