Rated 0 out of 5 stars.No ratings yet

This article provides guidance from a previous candidates experience of preparing and passing the IStructE exam. It has been written by a candidate who is a chartered structural and civil engineer having passed his IStructE interview in 2018, exam in 2020, and ICE review in 2023. Within this article, the candidate has written how he prepared for the exam and offers useful advice and tips for any other engineers who are preparing for the exam. The following article should help with your preparation.

Introduction

It is well known how challenging the chartered exam can be, so reading and understanding how another person prepared and studied for the exam can be useful in helping your own preparation and studying. I passed the exam in January 2020 after preparing for approximately 9 months and gained a good understanding of the exam requirements therefore I have decided to write down as much information as I can about my own exam experience which should help you with the following:

- Planning and preparing for the exam.
- Understanding the different sections of the exam and what is required in each one.
- Putting together a reference folder.

Approx. 9 months before exam

Preparation and planning

I started going to an exam preparation course approximately 9 months before the exam, this was a weekly evening class that I attended for 10 weeks. I would say that attending an exam preparation course can be very helpful (I've been told that the pass rate is higher for those who have completed an exam preparation course). The course gave me a good introduction to the exam, as we went through past questions, and used this as a foundation to develop my understanding of the exam as I started properly preparing approximately 7 months before the exam.

In summary, the months of preparation involved going through past exam papers and creating my reference folder. To start with, I created a folder on my computer to save any documents related to the exam, this included the following folders of which some were further split into separate sub-folders:

- Reading list – including any guidance / books / reference material / PDF's that I thought would be relevant.
- Past exam papers and examiner reports which can be downloaded here: <https://www.istructe.org/2022-03-01/documents/prepare-for-the-exam/exam-preparation/chartered-membership-exam-study-kit>
- Documents and notes from the exam preparation course.
- My own attempted answers that I had scanned.
- Attempted answers from other people who have passed the exam – depending on the quality of these questions then this could be invaluable in helping you to understand the exam requirements, there are some worked examples on this website which may be helpful.
- An excel spreadsheet with my target programme to attempt certain questions and develop my reference folder.
- Reference folder – this is where I stored everything that I wanted to include in the hard copy reference folder to take into the exam which I explain in further detail later.

After organising my dedicated folders on the computer, I then decided to make a start at attempting some of the questions.

Approx. 6 months before exam

Early attempts

My first thought when starting exam preparation was to just have a go at attempting a question from start to finish and assess how far I was from being ready, this is when the realisation started sinking in of the
