Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week, 30-min, 3 times per week, supervised exercise program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged, obese women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The exercise group performed a supervised program of walking, stretching, and strength training. The control group performed no structured exercise. Data were collected at baseline and at 10 weeks. The exercise group showed significant improvements in physical fitness, body composition, and psychological health compared to the control group. The results suggest that a supervised exercise program can improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged, obese women.
