C. Coppel,J. W. Mertins,2012-12-06 The subject area embraced by the term biological control in its classical sense is very broad indeed The term itself was apparently first used in 1919 by the late Harry S Smith and was then used specifically in reference to the suppression of insect populations by the actions of their indigenous or introduced natural enemies The California school of biological control specialists who followed in Smith s footsteps have traditionally differentiated natural biological control by indigenous natural enemies and applied biological control by man introduced natural enemies Subsequently the philosophy broadened beyond the original narrow concern with population suppression of insects and especially pest insects to embrace directed activities against mites or other arthropod pests various invertebrate and vertebrate pests weeds and organisms producing disease in humans or their domestic animals and plants The techniques used in these activities also multiplied beyond the original concern with natural enemies The subjects area discussed in this book is at the same time broader and more restricted than that covered in other books on biological control On the one hand the treatment here is restrictive in that with rare exception we have limited ourselves to dealing only with ideas and examples involving the suppression of insect pests through human activity or intervention in the environment Inventory of Federal Energy-related Environment and Safety Research for FY 1979 ,1980 Environment Abstracts ,1985 This database encompasses all aspects of the impact of people and technology on the environment and the effectiveness of remedial policies and technologies featuring more than 950 journals published in the U S and abroad The database also covers conference papers and proceedings special reports from international agencies non governmental organizations universities associations and private corporations Other materials selectively indexed include significant monographs government studies and newsletters Resources in Education ,1985 Inventory of Federal Energy-related Environment and Safety Research ,1978 Pacesetters in Innovation ,1966 Proceedings - Vertebrate Pest Conference ,2018 Pacesetters in Innovation United States.
