F. Marshall,R. D. Fleming,1971      Diesel Engine Emission Measurement Procedure Emissions Systems Forum Committee,1995 This SAE Recommended Practice is intended for use as a test procedure to determine the gaseous emission level of diesel engines Its purpose is to provide a map of an engine s emissions characteristics which through use of the proper weighing factors can be used as a measure of that engine s emission levels under various applications The emission results for hydrocarbons nitrogen oxides carbon monoxide and carbon dioxide are expressed in units of grams per kilowatt hour grams brake horsepower hour and represent the mass rate of emissions per unit of work accomplished The emissions are measured in accordance with SAE Recommended practices J177 J215 and J244 using nondispersive infrared equipment for CO and CO2 a heated flame ionization analyzer for HC and a high performance NDIR or a chemiluminescence analyzer for NO<sub>x</sub>. All emissions are measured during steady state engine operation. The mass rate of emissions is calculated a) from the concentration in the exhaust gas and the exhaust flow for each mode or b) alternately using a carbon balance method from the concentration in the exhaust gas and the mass flow rate of fuel for each mode. If method a) is used CO<sub>2</sub> should be measured for data validation. The final emissions are calculated by dividing the summation of the weighted emission mass rates by the summation of the weighted brake power values for a cycle.

Extension of Low Temperature Emission Test to Euro 6 Diesel Vehicle Christos Dardiotis, Giorgio Martini, Alessandro Marotta, Urbano Manfredi, European Commission. Joint Research Centre. Institute for Energy and Transport, 2012

The European Commission Regulations No 692/2008 and No 715/2007 set the regulatory framework for type approval of motor vehicles with respect to emissions from light passenger and commercial vehicles Euro 5/6. One of the applicable tests is the low temperature emission test Type VI which is conducted at sub ambient temperature conditions 7 °C. The low temperature emission test is currently required only for vehicles with positive ignition engines. However the Type VI test to diesel vehicles is under consideration mainly because of the introduction of the new technologies in diesel engines in order to comply with the Euro 5/6 emission standards of which the efficiency in controlling emission may strongly depend on the ambient temperature. This is especially true for Exhaust Gas Recirculation (EGR) systems and after treatment systems for Oxides of Nitrogen (NO<sub>x</sub>) that are deactivated or not operate in cold weather conditions may result in elevated NO<sub>x</sub> emissions. The review should consider whether to extend the low temperature emission test to Euro 6 diesel vehicles and whether emission limit should be introduced in the future. This report provides a picture of the low temperature emission performances of late technology diesel vehicles. The main results of the experimental activity carried out at JRC to investigate the behaviour at low temperature of Euro 5/6 diesel passenger cars are summarised and discussed.

ADVANCED DIESEL ENGINE AND AFTERTREATMENT TECHNOLOGY DEVELOPMENT FOR TIER 2 EMISSIONS. , 2003

Advanced diesel engine and aftertreatment technologies have been developed for multiple engine and vehicle platforms. Tier 2 2007 and beyond emissions levels have been demonstrated for a light truck vehicle over a FTP 75 test cycle on a vehicle chassis dynamometer. These low emissions levels are obtained while retaining the fuel economy advantage characteristic of diesel engines. The performance and emissions results were achieved by integrating advanced combustion strategies. CLEAN Combustion copyright with prototype aftertreatment systems. CLEAN Combustion copyright allows partial control of exhaust species for aftertreatment integration in addition to simultaneous NO<sub>x</sub> and PM reduction. Analytical tools enabled the engine and aftertreatment sub systems development and system integration. The experimental technology development methodology utilized a range of facilities to streamline development of the eventual solution including utilization of steady state and transient dynamometer test beds to simulate chassis
