More than half of the 100,000 people who attended the 2005 World Summit on the Environment and Development in Johannesburg, South Africa, were women. This was a significant increase from the 2002 World Summit on Sustainable Development in Johannesburg, South Africa, where only 30% of the attendees were women. The increase in women's participation in the summit was a result of the efforts of the United Nations Women's Fund, which provided financial support for women's participation in the summit.
