New Critical Spaces in Transitional Justice Arnaud Kurze, Christopher K. Lamont, 2019-01-10 Since the 1980s transitional justice mechanisms have been increasingly applied to account for mass atrocities and grave human rights violations throughout the world Over time post conflict justice practices have expanded across continents and state borders and have fueled the creation of new ideas that go beyond traditional notions of amnesty retribution and reconciliation Gathering work from contributors in international law political science sociology and history

New Critical Spaces in Transitional Justice addresses issues of space and time in transitional justice studies It explains new trends in responses to post conflict and post authoritarian nations and offers original empirical research to help define the field for the future The State of African Cities, 2014 United Nations Publications,2015-09-10 The African continent is currently in the midst of simultaneously unfolding and highly significant demographic economic technological environmental urban and socio political transitions Africa s economic performance is promising with booming cities supporting growing middle classes and creating sizable consumer markets Despite significant overall growth the continent continues to suffer under very rapid urban growth accompanied by massive urban poverty and many other social problems These seem to indicate that the development trajectories followed by African nations since post independence may not be able to deliver on the aspirations of broad based human development and prosperity for all This report therefore argues for a bold re imagining of prevailing models in order to steer the ongoing transitions towards greater sustainability based on a thorough review of all available options That is especially the case since the already daunting urban challenges in Africa are now being exacerbated by the new vulnerabilities and threats associated with climate and environmental change
