

Maximum discharge of Kolungpur gauging station were collected from year 1985 to 2018 from Central Water Commission (CWC)-Chandamara, India. The annual maximum discharge data were used for flood frequency analysis.

4.2 Data Analysis

Flow data are denoted in terms of exceedance probabilities and recurrence intervals. Considering, as the annual maximum flood in year i and the quantile Q as the value of expected to exceed with probability P , the following relation, $P [i \leq Q] = P$, during the year of concern is derived. Thus, there is an P % chance for $Q \geq Q [P]$ occurrence. In other way, there is a $(1-P)$ % chance that events $K \leq Q [P]$ occurs. The return period T of a flood, is the reciprocal of the probability of exceedance in one year computed as $1/P [P]$.

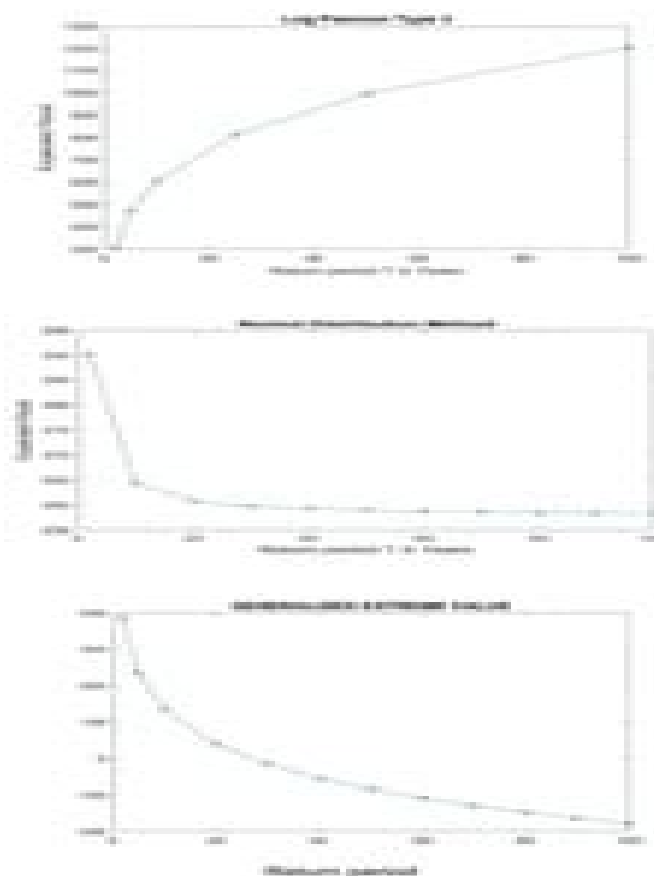

Here we use the software called MATLAB to plot the graphs of collected data. MATLAB is a programming platform used by millions of engineers and scientists to analyse data, develop algorithms, and create models.

4.3 MATLAB Software

Based on data, return period and predicted discharge need to be calculated and plotting graph using MATLAB. In the procedure is given below:

- Plot the graph of 4 methods of return period-predicted flood graph and return period-measured flow discharge graph.
- In MATLAB, after you import data into the MATLAB workspace, it is a good idea to plot the data so that you can explore its features. An exploratory plot of the data enables to identify discontinuities and potential outliers, as the regions of interest.
- Load and plot data from the text and record. Each data column in the file represents data for one intersection.

The Result will be getting the plotted Graph of the following data.

Four Graphs shows the 4 methods of Return period versus Expected flood

From the Gumbel's distribution, the expected estimated discharges for return periods of 2yrs, 10yrs, 50yrs and 100yrs were obtained as 331.41 m^3/s , 616.94 m^3/s , 867.00 m^3/s and 972.87 m^3/s respectively. These values can be adopted as a guide for storm water management in the region during flood. The predicted value and measured value of discharge showed good agreement without much variation as indicated in Fig. 4. Flood frequency analysis was carried out
