Abstract—The authors examined the effects of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of 100 women with breast cancer. The program included aerobic and resistance training, and was designed to improve physical fitness, reduce fatigue, and improve mood. The results of the study showed that the program had a positive effect on physical fitness, fatigue, and mood. The authors conclude that a 12-week training program can be an effective intervention for women with breast cancer.
