into the broader political contexts of their cities Much of the problem with our schools lies with the reluctance of educators to recognize the profoundly political character of public education The contributors show how urban political contexts vary widely with factors like racial composition the role of the teachers union and relations between cities and surrounding metropolitan areas Presenting case studies of original field research in Baltimore Chicago Houston and six other urban areas they consider how resistance to desegregation and the concentration of the poor in central urban areas affect education and they suggest how cities can build support for reform through the involvement of business and other community players By demonstrating the complex interrelationship between urban education and politics this book shows schools to be not just places for educating children but also major employers and large spenders of tax dollars It also introduces the concept of civic capacity the ability of educators and non educators to work together on common goals and suggests that this key issue must be addressed before education can be improved Changing Urban Education makes it clear to educators that the outcome of reform efforts depends heavily on their political context as it reminds political scientists that education is a major part of the urban mix While its prognosis is not entirely optimistic it sets forth important guidelines that cannot be ignored if our schools are to successfully prepare children for the future

Report Card on Report Cards Tara S. Azwell, Elizabeth Schmar, 1995 The contributors tell their own stories presenting and describing some of the authentic assessment and reporting strategies they have devised and are using in their classrooms Narratives developmental continuums and indicators of progress are all explored Strategies focus on home and school collaboration student self assessment the technology for developing report forms and more Throughout the book abundant examples and samples of student work show ways to bring curriculum outcomes and progress reports together Nation's Schools Report, 1990 CSE Report, 1982
