Connecting People to Their Oceans: Issues and Options for Effective Ocean Literacy Angel Borja, Francesca Santoro, Gail Scowcroft, Stephen Fletcher, Pierre Strosser, 2020-03-25 While there is growing evidence of the importance of marine ecosystems for our societies evidence shows also that pressures from human activities on these ecosystems are increasing putting the health of marine ecosystems at stake worldwide Hence Blue Economy is becoming an important component of future socio economic development strategies e g this is called Blue Growth in Europe that eventually can result in increasing pressures at sea and despite the current regulatory framework in particular with the Oceans Act in USA or Canada and the Marine Strategy Framework Directive in Europe it is likely that this situation will continue in the future Ensuring all those connected to the sea directly or indirectly gain a better understanding of the importance of the seas the human sea interactions and opportunities to act better and reduce impacts from human pressures is central to Ocean Literacy OL Receiving increasing attention in Europe and USA OL is a challenge for all parts of society educators 2 the role OL could play in interaction with innovation regulation economic incentive social norms to support human capital development as key component of sustainable growth and 3 pre conditions for effective OL for different sectors and target groups Questions relevant to OL include Which knowledge produced by whom to share and how Who to target and how to effectively reach those targeted How to design OL initiatives including by mobilizing those targeted via living lab approaches e g to ensure effective OL and pave the way for behavior change What are the knowledge gaps that limit our capacity to design effective OL As scientists it is likely you have many more questions to offer and discuss

Mechanisms and New Targets for the Treatment of Chronic Pain Milica S. Prostran, Francisco R. Nieto, Sonja Maksim Vuckovic, 2020-12-03 Acute pain has a physiological protective role in preventing tissue damage However pain can become chronic due to a multitude of pathophysiological states such as trauma inflammation neural injury viral infection cancer autoimmune diseases and vascular and metabolic disorders These pathological states can trigger alterations of the pain pathways that can lead to hypersensitivity and in such circumstances pain loses its protective role and instead becomes persistent and debilitating affecting seriously to the quality of life of patients Chronic pain is one of the most important health problems worldwide It has been estimated that 10% of adults are diagnosed with chronic pain each year However despite the high prevalence of chronic pain its management is still no fully satisfactory probably due to the variety of chronic pain conditions with different etiologies neuropathic visceral and musculoskeletal pain and because their pathophysiological mechanisms are only partially known Therefore there is a huge need for new effective therapies for the control and or prevention of the different types of chronic pain Chronic pain is associated with plastic changes in pain circuits of the peripheral and central nervous system including changes in the expression of ion channels neurotransmitters and receptors In addition there is growing consensus on non neuronal mechanisms that can amplify or resolve chronic pain and cells traditionally thought to act just as coordinators of the inflammatory response such as immune and glial cells are now accepted as real modulators of pain signaling In this regard animal models of persistent pain such as models of neuropathic and visceral pain and models of arthritis are helping to elucidate our understanding of the pathogenesis of chronic pain and make it possible to test experimental treatments
