

intake activities. The presence of the graduate advisor can ensure that intake activities are moving forward in accordance with international guidelines.

- Find out the international organization's minimum GPA requirements for joining. This will allow you to assist the chapters in ensuring that they are inviting academically sound members into their organizations.
- The international organization should be able to inform you of all the membership intake documents that require the signature of the campus fraternity/sorority professional. You should be familiar with the documentation and expect to receive it if an organization is conducting intake, so that you may ensure that chapters are following the proper channels. This also allows you and the international organization to share the same knowledge base regarding the chapter's membership intake process.
- The international organization should indicate whether its chapters are permitted to implement a new member presentation (probate, coming out show, sleep exhibition, etc.). If the organization allows undergraduate chapters to have such events, the guidelines should be outlined at the international level. By becoming familiar with the guidelines for new member presentations, you will be able to make certain that the guidelines are being carried out appropriately on your campus.

Upon receiving the requested information from the international organization, be sure to keep it confidential. Only staff members who work directly with these chapters need to be aware of the details of the membership intake process. Student workers should not have access to this information. It is generally the expectation of both the organization and the undergraduates that you will keep all information regarding their process confidential. It is wise to reassure the international organization and the chapter leaders that you understand and will abide by their need for confidentiality. This will put all parties involved at ease and make it evident that you have their best interests in mind.

Be aware of and understand the series of events leading up to the membership intake process.

The campus fraternity/sorority professional should be informed of all dates for membership intake activities prior to their occurrence. The fraternity/sorority office or department should have a policy requiring organizations to seek approval for all intake related activities. A sample membership intake policy is included in Appendix C.

- Programming Efforts - Generally, NPHC groups conduct regular educational programs that are open to the college/university community. Individuals interested in becoming members of the organization are expected to attend these events to become familiar with the organization and decide if they wish to pursue membership.
- Informational - This is typically the venue in which the chapter gives interested parties information about the international organization and the local chapter. Some chapters use the informational to informally interview potential membership candidates. Depending on the chapter, region, or institution, informationals may be identified by other names (see Appendix A). Work with the undergraduates and the graduate advisor to learn what terminology they use.
- Formal Rush or Interest Meeting - This venue provides interested parties the opportunity to submit formal materials to request membership into the organization. Attendees are also
