

17 Test Transmitters

1. Close the door. The Touchpad cover should indicate "Ready".
2. Press STAY (the STAY light flashes).
3. Engage the deadbolt. Both the ARMED and STAY lights on the Touchpad should turn on (the system armed STAY).
4. Disengage the deadbolt and the system should disarm and turn back off (READY light turns on).
5. Open the door. The Touchpad should sound a chime.

If there is a problem, see Troubleshooting on page 9.

To learn a second transmitter, start again at step 13.

19 IMPORTANT: Seal access holes

First create a service loop of wires that is long enough to allow the receiver button to be pressed and the LED to be observed. Then seal the access holes with putty (supplied) to ensure EZ Touchpad is air tight. This important step is necessary to prevent air drafts from entering the EZ Touchpad from the wall cavity.

18 Test Transmitter Signal Level

Test the transmitter to confirm signal strength. Press and release the tamper switch. The receiver LED should flicker in unison with the transmitter LED; if not, there is a problem with the installation (see Troubleshooting on page 9).

Close the Transmitter Case

Snap the front of the Transmitter cover onto the base by inserting the 2 slots in the top onto the corresponding tabs on the base and then snapping the bottom into place.

20 Install the EZ Touchpad Face

Double-check all connections to the EZ Touchpad using the wiring diagram as a guide. The antenna must be carefully pushed through the hole in the case and dangle down the inside of the wall (see step 3). Snap the front of the EZ Touchpad onto the base by first inserting the 2 slots in the top onto the corresponding tabs on the base and then snapping the bottom into place.
