

13.3 - Napoleon's Empire Collapses

Napoleon's ambition proved to be both Napoleon's greatest strength as well as his undoing. His desire for power had raised him to great heights, and the same love of power led him to his own destruction. In his efforts to extend the French Empire and crush Great Britain, Napoleon made three disastrous mistakes: The Continental System, the Peninsular War, and the disastrous invasion of Russia.

1. What were Napoleon's 3 big mistakes?

- a.
- b.
- c.

Frustrated by his inability to force Britain to surrender, Napoleon set up a blockade to prevent all trade between Great Britain and other European nations. Napoleon called this policy the Continental System because it was supposed to make continental Europe more self-sufficient. Napoleon also intended to destroy Great Britain's commercial and industrial economy which depended on trade. This blockade ultimately failed for several reasons. First, British smugglers managed to bring cargo from Britain into Europe and the French were powerless to stop them. Second, many of Napoleon's allies who were forced to adopt this policy either disregarded the policy or became embittered by it, turning his allies into enemies. In addition, Britain responded with its own blockade. And because the British had a stronger navy, they were better able than the French to make the blockade work. Although this angered the United States and eventually led to war, it was only a minor inconvenience to Britain who was focused on the destruction of Napoleon.

2. What was Napoleon's Continental System attempt to block European countries from trade with?

3. Was the Continental System successful?

In 1808, Napoleon made a second costly mistake in what became known as the Peninsular War. To force Portugal to accept the Continental System, he sent an invasion force through Spain. When the Spanish people protested this action, Napoleon removed the Spanish king and put his own brother, Joseph, on the throne. This act outraged the Spanish people and inflamed their nationalistic feelings. Unable to defeat Napoleon in open battle the Spanish instead fought a guerrilla war in which peasants ambushed French troops and then fled into hiding. This war devastated French morale and made many begin to lose faith in their cause. The British added to the French troubles by sending troops to aid the Spanish. Napoleon lost about 300,000 men during this war and it proved to Europe that Napoleon could be defeated.

4. Who did Napoleon put in charge of Spain?

5. What type of war did the Spanish people engage in with the French?

6. What country sent troops to help push France (and Napoleon) out of Spain?

The biggest mistake of Napoleon's career came in 1812 with his invasion of Russia.

Although Alexander I was Napoleon's ally, the Russian czar refused to stop selling grain to Britain. Because of this breakdown in their alliance, Napoleon decided to invade Russia. In June of 1812, Napoleon and his Grand Army of more than 600,000 soldiers marched into Russia. Rather than confront Napoleon, the czar pulled back his troops, refusing to give battle to Napoleon. As the Russians retreated, they practiced a scorched earth policy in which they burned their own fields and slaughtered livestock to leave nothing for the enemy to eat. When
