Advances in Communication Research to Reduce Childhood Obesity Jerome D. Williams, Keryn E Pasch, Chiquita A. Collins, 2013-02-12 Rates of childhood obesity are alarmingly high and increasing each year Studies have shown that obese children are more likely to become obese adults and are likely to suffer with numerous health consequences like coronary heart disease high blood pressure and Type II diabetes among others Studies also indicate that television viewing and exposure to advertising for food products influences children s attitudes toward food preferences and food purchase requests for foods with low nutritional value It is important to better understand the role of media in childhood obesity and to learn how media may be used to address this issue in a positive way This book focuses on communication and media research that can have an impact on reducing childhood obesity Emphasis is placed on topics related to how the media communicate health related messages about food nutrition and diet that influence childhood obesity Particular emphasis is on the new media given the fact that media now have more central roles in socializing today s children and youth than ever before Advertising and marketing messages reach young consumers through a variety of vehicles broadcast and cable television radio magazines computers through the Internet music cell phones and in many different venues homes schools child care settings grocery stores shopping malls theaters sporting events and even airports In addition given the disparity in obesity rates between children of color and the general population special attention is given to research on media targeting these populations

Using

American Community Survey Data to Expand Access to the School Meals Programs National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, Panel on Estimating Children Eligible for School Nutrition Programs Using the American Community Survey, 2012-11-18

The National School Lunch and School Breakfast Programs administered by the Food and Nutrition Service FNS of the U S Department of Agriculture USDA are key components of the nation's food security safety net providing free or low cost meals to millions of schoolchildren each day To qualify their children each year for free or reduced price meals many families must submit applications that school officials distribute and review To reduce this burden on families and schools and to encourage more children to partake of nutritious meals USDA regulations allow school districts to operate their meals programs under special provisions that eliminate the application process and other administrative procedures in exchange for providing free meals to all students enrolled in one or more school in a district FNS asked the National Academies Committee on National Statistics and Food and Nutrition Board to convene a panel of experts to investigate the technical and operational feasibility of using data from the continuous American Community Survey ACS to estimate students eligible for free and reduced price meals for schools and school districts The ACS eligibility estimates would be used to develop claiming percentages that if sufficiently accurate would determine the USDA reimbursements to districts for schools that provided free meals to all students under a new special provision that eliminated the ongoing base year requirements of current provisions Using American Community Survey Data to Expand Access to the School Meals Program was conducted in two phases It first issued an interim report National Research Council 2010 describing its planned approach for assessing the utility of ACS based estimates for a special provision to expand access to free school meals This report is the final phase which presents the panel's findings and recommendations
