Distant Leadership Under Stress Yan Xiao, 2003

This project was initiated to develop a phenomenology of team leadership and distant leadership in a highly dynamic potentially extremely stressful domain trauma patient resuscitation A series of five studies were conducted to understand team leadership in trauma teams One of the studies was a field experiment in which the location of the team leader was assigned to a distant location connected to the rest of the team through telecommunication linkages The studies used a variety of qualitative and quantitative methods In contrast to previous frameworks of leadership the current project depicted detailed team leadership processes and structures critical to the success of action teams These processes include adaptation of team structures in response to task urgency team experience and distance the fluidity of leadership functions performed by various members of a team and a multitude of leadership functions The contribution of the project should be mainly in its depiction of the complex and fluid nature of team leadership for teams that are multi disciplinary highly learning oriented and the hypothetical impacts of distance The project laid out a new foundation for future research of team leadership in collocated as well as distributed teams
