

Middle School Research Paper--Possible Topics (Paper copies handed out in Class)

Below are some questions to get you thinking about a possible topic for your research paper. You may decide to choose one of these topics, you may be led by one of these ideas to a related topic, or you may decide to choose a topic of your own that is not mentioned here. No matter what you choose, the following must be true about your topic:

1. It should be interesting to you! You will be spending a lot of time reading and writing about this topic, so pick something that you feel passionate about.
2. It can be discussed well in a 5-page typed research paper. Your topic should neither be too broad nor too limited.
3. It has research/expert support/data/facts from reliable sources to back up your general ideas.
4. It can be broken into three main parts (three body paragraphs) that develop your topic.
5. It allows you to be persuasive. Using research to support your ideas, you are taking a stand for or against some topic.

1. Should students be allowed to have cell phones with them during the day? (Choose elementary, middle, or high school.)
 2. Should all schools require students to wear uniforms?
 3. Should college athletes be paid for playing?
 4. Should the voting age be lowered?
 5. Should the driving age be raised?
 6. Should illegal immigrants be allowed to get drivers' licenses?
 7. Should students' textbooks be replaced by notebook computers?
 8. Should students have to pass a basic skills test to graduate high school?
 9. What can be done to address the obesity problem in American youth?
 10. Should girls be allowed to play on boys' sports teams?
 11. Should teens be able to buy violent video games?
 12. Should boys and girls be in separate classes (the advantages or disadvantages of coed schools)?
 13. Should our country have a universal health care program?
 14. Should immigration laws be reformed?
 15. Should people who download music and movies illegally be punished?

Writing Term Papers with Cool New Digital Tools Joe Greek, 2013-12-15 In the not too distant past students were expected to turn in only handwritten or typed papers. However, with today's ease of access to the Internet and free applications, teachers are now expecting students to go beyond the confines of text-only productions. Various online programs make it possible to create multi-layered term papers that are rich in images, audio, and even video. And most of these tools are free to use. Students can now access their work from nearly anywhere that has an Internet connection. In the case of collaborative research projects, this same technology allows team members to work with each other even when they are in different locations. A wide variety of online and offline tools, techniques, and tips to help students research, write, edit, prepare, and present term papers are discussed and explained here. This revelatory guidebook to the latest in term paper technology also supports Common Core Standards for the reading of technical accounts and texts. Middle School Research, 1977

Resources in Education, 1997-04 An International Look at Educating Young Adolescents Steven B. Mertens, Vincent A. Anfara, Kathleen Roney, 2009-02-01 Sponsored by the Middle Level Education Research Special Interest Group and the National Middle School Association, studies like the Third International Mathematics and Science Study (TIMSS) have compared the performance of U.S. middle grade students (i.e., eighth graders) to those in other countries. In relation to middle grade schools, 20 countries outperformed the United States in mathematics, and nine countries scored above the U.S. in science. The intent of this volume of The Handbook of Research in Middle Level Education: An International Look at Educating Young Adolescents is to broaden our understanding of middle grade schooling by critically examining the education of young adolescents (ages 10-15, typically grades 6-8) through an international lens. In addition to looking at how schooling and students are organized for teaching and learning, this handbook will focus on the successes and failures that are evident in a wide variety of nations, present the indictments and praises that have been offered by supporters and critics alike, and review the research that has been generated about educating young adolescents in an effort to cross national boundaries. Ultimately, this volume of the handbook series will explore what international perspectives teach us about the effective education of young adolescents. Middle School Journal, 1980 Methods in Educational Research Marguerite G. Lodico, Dean T. Spaulding, Katherine H. Voegtler, 2006-03-31 Written for students, educators, and researchers, Methods in Educational Research offers a refreshing introduction to the principles of educational research. Designed for the real world of educational research, the book's approach focuses on the types of problems likely to be encountered in professional experiences. Reflecting the importance of The No Child Left Behind Act, scientifically based educational research, school accountability, and the professional demands of the twenty-first century, Methods in Educational Research empowers educational researchers to take an active role in conducting research in their classrooms, districts, and the greater educational community activities that are now not only expected but required of all teachers. Moderator-topics, 1922 Student Cheating and Plagiarism

in the Internet Era Ann Lathrop, Kathleen Foss, 2000-06-15 Offers ideas and strategies to educators and parents for combating the increase in cheating and plagiarizing that has accompanied access to the Internet discussing the extent of the problem looking at high and low tech defenses against cheating and examining ways to make it more difficult to cheat
